

24 April 1954

55

Sir Donald MacDougall, Ruffield College,
Oxford,
England

Dear MacDougall,

Thank you very much for yours of April 22. You will find my complete address on this letter. I meanwhile also made yours more exact in my list.

If you got back one offprint I wonder whether I could still have a copy for which I would be very grateful anyhow. I did get your interesting lecture on the dollar problem which I read with complete agreement. I was particularly glad about what you said on the argument of the high American productivity and on the argument of the quicker rise in it. Finally I even shared your feelings of doubt as to the persistence of the problem.

With best regards,

24 April 1954

27

Sir Ronald MacDonnell, Hartfield College,
Oxford,
England

Dear MacDonnell,

Thank you very much for yours of April 22. You will find my complete address on this letter. I meanwhile also made yours more exact in my list.

If you got back one offprint I wonder whether I could still have a copy for which I would be very grateful anyhow. I did get your interesting lecture on the dollar problem which I read with complete agreement. I was particularly glad about what you said on the argument of the high American productivity and on the argument of the quicker rise in it.
Finally I even shared your feelings of doubt as to the persistence of the problem.

With best regards,