

J. TINBERGEN

THE HAGUE, 3 January 1955
Sijzenlaan 41

4
Professor George F. Kennan,
The Institute of Advanced Study,
Princeton University,
Princeton, New Jersey.

Dear Professor Kennan,

I read your lectures on "Realities of American Foreign Policy" with the greatest interest, and not only admired the style but also, and especially, the logic and the equilibrated approach. I am certain I learned much from it. You will understand that I had some special interest for your remarks concerning economic questions in particular, and was struck by your recommendations at the end of the fourth lecture. As far as a freer trade is concerned I feel complete agreement; your immigration paragraph seems to me to be particularly generous although certainly and in the long run legitimate. I am less certain whether I would agree with your opinion about what is now usually called "aid to underdeveloped countries". My tendency is to have a fairly different look on this matter, and having a chance to visit the United States several times this year I wonder whether it would be possible to have a discussion on this subject with you personally. In order to prepare the discussion I am sending you a copy of my little book "International Economic Integration", in which you will find a very brief indication of my views. Your comments on this book would be most welcome to me anyhow if you could find the opportunity to do so. I wonder whether you would kindly let me know whether there is a chance to meet you some time in June when I shall be for a longer time in Washington, and could easily come to Princeton.

With many thanks beforehand,
I am,

yours very sincerely,

J. T. TIMBERGREN

THE HAGUE, 3 January 1955
Stijzenlaan 44

Professor George F. Kennan,
The Institute of Advanced Study,
Princeton University,
Princeton, New Jersey.

Dear Professor Kennan,

I read your lecture on "Realities of American Foreign Policy" with the greatest interest, and not only admired the style but also, and especially, the logic and the equilibrated approach. I am certain I learned much from it. You will understand that I had some special interest for your remarks concerning economic questions in particular, and was struck by your recommendations at the end of the fourth lecture. As far as a free trade is concerned I feel complete agreement; your immigration paragraph seems to me to be particularly generous although certainly and in the long run legitimate. I am less certain whether I would agree with your opinion about what is now usually called "aid to underdeveloped countries". My tendency is to have a fairly different look on this matter, and having a chance to visit the United States several times this year I wonder whether it would be possible to have a discussion on this subject with you personally. In order to prepare the discussion I am sending you a copy of my little book "International Economic Integration", in which you will find a very brief indication of my views. Your comments on this book would be most welcome to me anyhow if you could find the opportunity to do so. I wonder whether you would kindly let me know whether there is a chance to meet you some time in June when I shall be for a longer time in Washington, and could easily come to Princeton.

With many thanks beforehand,

I am,

Yours very sincerely,